

Dear friends in Jesus Christ,

To share the spirit of the Risen Lord to everyone and everywhere, last weekend Jesus invited us all to be united with Him by saying; “I am the true vine and you are the branches. Apart from me you can do nothing.” In today’s Gospel, Jesus teaches us that only through love we can be united to Him. Jesus not only just speaks about love, but the quality and the kind of love that we should have in our lives; “As the Father loves me, so I also love you. Remain in my love. If you keep my commandments, you will remain in my love, just as I have kept my Father’s commandments and remain in his love.”

Love, the most beautiful and at the same the most dangerous word in the world. Fortunately, or unfortunately, both characters of love can be found in the Bible. The beauty of love can be found through the life of Jesus which began with His birth and continued through His life, passion, death and resurrection. The ugly face of love can be found through the life of Judas Iscariot. Yes, if the love is not cared or handled carefully it can be the ugliest thing in our lives. As we reflect about the Gospel of today, let us ask ourselves, how we treat the love of God that we receive in our lives.

Nowadays, many people long to see a great miracle from God to get out from the problems they face in their daily lives like; economic crisis, natural and man-made calamities, wars, incurable and highly contagious diseases, moral and spiritual decay, and many others. We are hoping and praying that God will now intervene and put an end to all these troubles. We need a miracle. Unfortunately, God may not do it. He has already done His share. It is now up to us to continue His work, and in doing so produce the miracles we need. And Jesus has already revealed to us the miracle-producing formula: “Love one another as I have loved you.” If today, we have not realized Love as the miracle formula in our lives, it is a clear sign that we have not taken love seriously in our lives.

Yes, Love is the miracle that should happen every day in this world: when we learn to love in deed and in truth like Jesus. True love opens up great and wonderful miracles before our eyes: because of love, enemies are reconciled, warring countries re-establish peaceful and harmonious relationships, families are united and happy, the poor and hungry are attended to, criminals mend their ways, resources and blessings are generously shared among people, the truth is proclaimed, justice and peace prevail, kindness and generosity rule in society. More than all these results what do we need in this present world? The problem is that people think of love as a subject matter to be discussed, a passing emotion, or just a vague romantic idea. St. John, in his first Letter, pleads with us: “Children, let us love, not in word or speech, but in deed and truth” (1Jn 3:18).

Love is an action word. The first action in relation to love is obedience to God’s commandments. The commandments of God are not meant to make our life difficult; rather to help us practice love more readily. The commandments teach us not only to love God, but also our neighbor. So Today’s gospel is a command to love: “This I command you, love one another.” It means that we do not have any option than to love one another. The reason is simple. We ourselves are the products of love. This love flows from God to Christ and from Christ to us. It also flows from God to our parents and, from our parents to us. This is why Jesus tells us today: “As the father has loved me, so have I loved you.” So, we have no reason not to extend it to others. The role of each of us is to continue the chain of love. Love done and practiced is the greatest miracle we hope and pray for to happen in our world today. Then, and only then, will our joy be complete. God Bless
