Second Collection for Hurricane Relief – November 16th

As you may be aware, the record-breaking Category 5 Hurricane Melissa has struck Jamaica and the surrounding areas. The Diocese of Mandeville is our sister diocese, and Bishop Medley has requested that we take up a second collection on Sunday, November 16th, to help support our brothers and sisters in the Diocese of Mandeville, Jamaica, during this difficult time.

"Listen with the ear of your heart."
-St. Benedict

Church Keys Reminder – St. Sebastian

If you have been entrusted with church keys as part of a leadership role or special responsibility, we thank you for your service and dedication. If you are no longer serving in a leadership position or do not currently have church responsibilities, we kindly ask that you return your keys to the church office at your earliest convenience. This helps us keep our church safe and organized for everyone. Thank you for your understanding, cooperation, and continued support of our parish family.

Ministry Opportunities

There are many ways to participate in church ministry, including serving as an Altar Server, Eucharistic Minister, Lector, assisting with the First Sunday Breakfast (men only), or helping count the offertory, etc. We invite you to prayerfully consider how God may be calling you to serve in our parish community. There are copies of the Stewardship of Time and Talent forms on the table for your convenience.

Dear friends in Christ,

Today we celebrate the dedication of the Lateran Basilica in Rome. At first glance, it seems strange to celebrate the dedication of a particular building, no matter how historic or beautiful it might be. To understand the meaning of this feast, we first must understand the meaning of church buildings in general. Of course, they serve a practical purpose by giving us a safe and inviting place to gather for the Eucharist, but they also have an important symbolic meaning.

All three of the readings today use buildings in a symbolic manner. In the first reading, Ezekiel has a vision of water flowing from the side of the temple. This water symbolizes God’s grace, which brings life and renewal wherever it flows.

Saint Paul uses the image of a temple as a symbol for the Christian people, both collectively and individually; he tells the Corinthians they are built on the foundation of Christ.

In today’s Gospel Jesus, after driving the money-changers and traders out of the temple in Jerusalem, uses the temple as a symbol of his body, which will die and then be raised up in three days.

Reflecting on these readings, it becomes clear that a church building is a symbol of the Church itself: Christ’s mystical body, formed from the assembled Christian people, existing to bring God’s grace to the whole world. In celebrating the dedication of a church building, we are celebrating and commemorating our own dedication as members of the Church, living stones in the temple of God. It is a day to remember that we are sacred, having been redeemed and made one with Christ through baptism.

With that background in place, we can turn to the particular symbolic significance of the Lateran Basilica. To remain part of the Church, it is necessary to remain in union with Jesus Christ; he is the head and we are the members, or, as Paul puts it in today’s reading, he is the foundation upon which we are built.

How can we tell if we are in union with Jesus and the Church he founded in a world full of competing claims and arguments? The Church gives us a simple answer: the pope, as the successor of Peter, serves as the touchstone of unity. As Saint Ambrose once said, where Peter is, there is the Church. If we are in communion with the bishop of Rome, we are in communion with Christ’s Church. Practically speaking, this also means being united to our local bishops.

The Lateran Basilica is the pope’s personal cathedral; in celebrating its dedication, we celebrate our unity in Christ. As we prepare to receive the Eucharist, the Body of Christ, let us ask Jesus to purify us and make us one with him. May our union with him drive out all division and enmity from our hearts so we can become fully integrated into his body, and provide a channel through which all people can receive God’s life-giving grace. Amen.
