The Kroger Community Rewards program enables customers to support local nonprofit organizations simply by shopping at Kroger and using their Shopper's Card. To participate, customers create a digital account, link their Shopper's Card to a chosen organization, and then every purchase contributes to that organization at no extra cost. Donations are calculated annually based on the customer's spending relative to all participating shoppers, and local schools, churches, and nonprofits can earn significant funds through this program Enrollment is renewed annually, and organizations must be in the same Kroger division as the customer's preferred store.

TRUST in Him at all times; ye people,
Pour out your heart before Him;
GOD is a REFUGE for us.

Dear friends in Christ,

Every day, we are given the opportunity to live in a way that advances God's work. But where can we begin? Today's readings offer some guidance.

In today's first reading, we hear several prescriptions for a worthy wife. She is trustworthy, brings her husband good, and works with loving hands. We can approach this passage in Proverbs as a prescription for how the Church, as the Bride of Christ, should conduct itself. In this way, these guidelines are for all of us. As Christ's worthy bride, we are to reach out [our] hands to the poor and extend [our] arms to the needy. We are to be proactive in doing good, advancing the mission entrusted to us by Christ, our bridegroom.

The second reading also provides direction for our Christian conduct. The Apostle Paul writes to the Thessalonian community, praising them for living not in darkness but in light, ready to meet the Lord when he comes. He says that because they live not in darkness, they will not be caught off guard by the Lord's return. Here, this community lives each day in faithful preparation – and so should we. Like the Thessalonians, we must stay alert and sober in order to be prepared for Christ's return at any time.

These themes of proactive service and careful preparation for the Lord's return find deeper expression in our Gospel. In this parable, known as the parable of the talents, a man entrusts his wealth to his servants while he embarks on a journey. Two of his servants channel their skills into expanding their master's wealth, while one servant falters and fearfully hides the wealth. The two servants are faithful and so take the risk – what we might see as a leap of faith – trusting their master, who rewards them greatly upon his return. The one servant allows fear to lead instead of faith, and so his trust falters.

Like the two servants, we are called to use our talents to advance God's great work. God entrusts these gifts to us and expects that we will use them in furthering his kingdom.

As we come to this Eucharist, may we ask the Lord to strengthen us by his grace, that we might not sit idly while time passes by, but may proactively and courageously put the gifts he has given us into his service, as we wait in the hope of his return in glory.

"Those who are bound by the love of God can be considered to have found the secret of eternal life."
- St. Elizabeth of Hungary

"Should you not then have put my money in the bank so that I could have got it back with interest on my return?"
Jesus told several parables about people given responsibility for different quantities of talents and the consequences for the recipients who used their talents well in contrast to the recipients who failed to use their talents at all. Jesus seems to act harshly toward the person in the stories who receives the least amount and does nothing with it. The lesson of theses stories is not that the people who receive the least amount of talents did not have much to work with. Jesus is teaching us that no matter how much or how little for which God makes us responsible, God expects us to make our best effort to make the most of it. It is not about the amount of the talents. It is about the amount of the effort. A steward is a person who is given the responsibility for the preservation and productivity of the possessions of another. Everything we are and have comes from God. He expects us to be good stewards and make the most of it.
